Is Love Too Heavy?

Pont des Arts is a famous bridge in Paris. Lots of artists go there to show their art. In 2008, people started to hang locks on the bridge railings.

Hanging locks on the bridge railings is a popular way for people who want to show love to their loved ones. However, in June 2014, the heavy locks led to some parts of the railings to fall. Luckily, no one was hurt in the accident, but the public started to worry about the bridge. Then, in 2015, the "love action" was stopped. The city took down a million locks and turned the railings into glass. From then on, it became difficult for people to put locks on the bridge.

Pont des Arts is now safe. Although people can't hang their love locks there now, they can still take pictures with each other.

The business world belongs to not only grown-ups but also teenagers who are even younger. Just like the movie "The Boss Baby," the real-life kidpreneurs are really making their mark in the world just by doing what they love. Besides Alina Morse, Mikaila Ulmer is another great example.

Mikaila came up with the smart idea which brings in millions of dollars after being stung twice a week by a bee as a child. Although she was scared of bees because of the pain, she turned her worries into the study on them and learned all about the ecosystem. This girl then used her great grandmother's cookbook to make her product—Me& the Bees Lemonade. It is a kind of mixed drink by adding honey from bees and blending with natural and simple ingredients.

Mikaila's little idea was from more than 10 years ago, and it keeps growing and growing. Today, customers can buy the ready-to-drink Me & the Bees Lemonades in at least 5000 stores in the USA. It is also come in at a growing number of restaurants and natural food delivery companies. On the other hand, Mikaila cares about the Earth and tries her best to help save all the bees through several ways. For example, she donates parts of the profits from the sale to the groups fighting hard to help honeybees. That is why she says "Buy a Bottle, Save a Bee."

Memory is important to us. With good memory, we can remember information, experiences, and people easily. On the other hand, if we have poor memory, we will not do well in our jobs or school work. We may make some mistakes, say something wrong, or even have some trouble in real life.

Though some people are born with better memory than others, studies show that with enough practice, it is possible to make our memory stronger. For example, if we keep repeating something, like listening to a new song again and again, we will remember it better. Next, we can use mnemonics to help us. Take colors for example. We can use ROYGBIV to remember the colors of the rainbow: Red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet. Or when trying to remember long numbers like cellphone numbers, we can make it a habit to chunk them into groups of twos, threes, or fours.

We can also do the following things to make our memory work better:

- Eat well at each meal.
- Do exercise often.
- Get enough sleep.
- Do something fun and laugh often.

A healthy body and happy mind will do our memory good. When we are in poor health, we usually have a hard time learning and thinking.

When we go to the beach, sometimes we see hermit crabs there. And we all know hermit crabs have to change to bigger shells when they grow bigger. In fact, when they finally find a new shell, they have a special habit: They will tell other hermit crabs to change shells together!

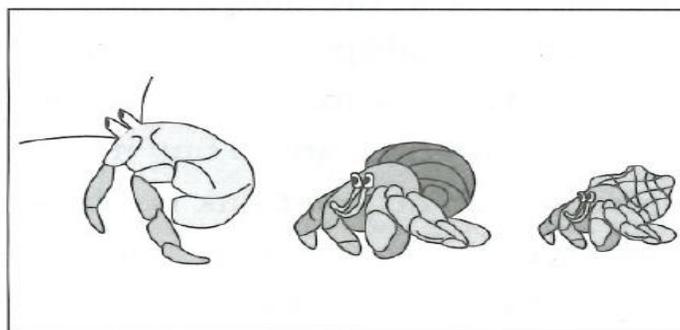

How do they change shells together? When they start to get together, they will stand in line according to their sizes. After the first one which is also the biggest one takes off its shell, the second one which is smaller than the biggest one puts on the shell of the first one. Then the third one puts on the shell of the second one, and so on. It is interesting, isn't it?

Why do they change shells this way? Actually, it is not easy to find a new shell. By doing this, the chance of not finding a shell will be smaller. Hermit crabs try their best to live. To help them, please don't take away shells on the beach, and don't leave trash on the beach, either. Don't make them only have to live by taking our trash as their homes.

One day when Bill was working at the meat shop, a dog walked into his shop. 40., and the note said, "One kilogram of beef, please." Bill was surprised. He took the money, put a bag of beef in the dog's mouth and quickly closed the shop. He followed the dog and watched it wait for a green light, look at both sides of the ways, and cross the road to a bus stop. The dog checked the timetable and sat by the stop. When a bus came, it looked at the bus number and then got on the bus. 41. When the bus moved on, the dog looked outside the window. After a while, the dog stood on his back feet and pushed the "stop" bell, and both the dog and Bill got off the bus. The dog ran to a house and dropped the bag. It knocked on the door. It did this again and again, but there was no one answered. Then it ran to the garden, hit his head against a window and went back to the front door. A man opened it and shouted angrily at the dog. Bill ran up to the man and said, "What are you doing to it? The dog is a genius!" The man said, "42. It's the second time this week it forgot the key!"
